The PacWeigh Grower Payment System for Berry Producers (GPBP) is a “producer payment” system designed for fruit and vegetable packing houses. It can function as a complete Accounts Payables Sub-Leger system for making payments to growers for product received and related items.

GPBP - Grower Payment System for Berry Producers - has many capabilities:

- upload receipts from PacWeigh Berry Receiving Program. Allows for manual adjustments
- processes receipts from growers
- determines payment amounts
- creates cheques for growers
- cheque registers
- grower ledgers of financial transactions
- tracks accounts payable/receivable of growers
- tracks receipts and shipments of various types of containers
- works in conjunction with PacWeigh Berry Receiving Program
- provides statistics on grower production including
- provides statistics on grades of product
- multi-user
- handles up to 1,000 products

The system is designed to allow you to pay multiple advance payments against each individual receipt. Each receipt can have a separate final price. For example, if you receive some product on June 15, you could make a first advance of 40 cents/pound on June 21, then a second advance of 50 cents on July 15, then a third advance of 10 cents/lb in September, and a final payout to $1.45/lb in October.

This system holds historical data indefinitely. It has a strong audit trail which shows details of how each payment was arrived at. GPBP also permits bonus payments, levies, and allows for loans and other transactions which do not directly relate to individual receipts.
